

METHODS AND COMPOSITIONS FOR TREATING AND PREVENTING EAR INFECTIONS

Abstract of the Disclosure

- 5 The present invention relates to methods of treating, reducing, or preventing ear infections by topically administering a rifamycin of the invention to the ear of a patient. Infections amenable to treatment according to this invention include, for example, otitis media, otitis externa, or infections arising from surgery.